

Join the observance of National Cyber Security Awareness Month

3 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5, 2016 | Johnson Center Room F
From the Frontline: Responding to Cyber Attacks on Computer Networks

Steve Meckl *Director of the Americas Incident Response Team/
Symantec Corp.*

Meckl leads the team responsible for helping clients identify, contain, and eradicate cyber attacks on their networks. He also worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He is pursuing his doctoral degree in Computer Science at George Mason University. He has a master's degree in Information Security and Assurance from Mason's Volgenau School of Engineering and received his bachelor's degree in computer engineering from the University of Michigan.

3 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, 2016 | Johnson Center Room D
From the Frontline: Working for the FBI

Bob Osgood *Director of Computer Forensics and Data Analytics/
George Mason University*

Osgood is the Director of Computer Forensics and Data Analytics at George Mason University. He teaches computer forensics and forensic accounting, as well as manages the Government Services Program. He spent most of his career as an FBI Agent working in Washington D.C. and New York. He handled cases with spies Robert Hanssen and Ana Montez, worked on the investigation into the crash of TWA 800, and the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103. He also worked the first digital wiretap conducted by the FBI.

11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday Oct. 25 and Wednesday, Oct. 26
Johnson Center Kiosk E

From the Frontline: Protecting and Promoting Online Security at Mason

IT Security Office Staff members /George Mason University

Join Information Technology Security Office staff members as they answer questions and provide information about how you can stay safe and secure online.

